Chesterfield Gallery is hosting an exhibition "Tactile/Textile" at the gallery's New York location.

The exhibition brings together the works by artists J. Mikal Davis, London Kaye, Maureen Meyer, Ellannah Sadkin, and Jason Tudor, aiming to exemplify the balance between fine art and design by demonstrating unconventional techniques of textile work. Although these featuring artists are known for their diversely individual methodologies, but the show insists on binding them together in terms of the usage of textile materials in their creative process. Each artist has their own distinctive approach, ranging from the yarn works of London Kaye, who takes crocheting to a whole new level through her large scale and vibrant imagery, to the stylized use of lace patterns by J. Mikal Davis, the artist formerly known as Hellbent, who creates 3D optical illusions that elevate off the canvas. Abstract artist Ellannah Sadkin brings a completely fresh perspective with her large scale soft sculptures, physically representing her own detailed paintings; while Maureen Meyer analyzes the properties of traditional dyes as an artistic medium, particularly indigo, and creates abstract renditions of unique patterns; and multi-disciplined artist Jason Tudor presents his organic, free-flowing drawings and digitally renders them to produce textiles and objects.

The exhibition is on view through August 12, 2017 at Chesterfield Gallery, 109 Norfolk Street, New York, NY 10002, USA.
